DAVID BRAN

By MORLEY ROBERTS, author of "Rachel Marr"

IT is now five years since Mr. Morley Roberts took the literary world by storm with the publication of "Rachel Marr," and gave us a story which has been described as "one of the most remarkable novels of the generation." DAVID BRAN, like "Rachel Marr," is a strong and dramatic story, dealing with one of the most potent forces of nature—what Bernard Shaw calls the "Life Force." In it Mr. Roberts presents the old problem of a man and two women in a new light. Characterized as this book is by the skilful achievement which distinguished "Rachel Marr," its interest is strengthened by a remarkable defence of heterodox doctrines, and the surprising and courageous conclusion to which the author draws his novel.

SENATOR BEVERIDGE says:

54-40 or FIGHT is a great novel and a great history combined. An intensely dramatic story of one of the greatest epochs in the nation's life. Helena Von Ritz, the heroine, is an amazing and fascinating creature. Adventure, love and intrigue enthrall the reader from the first sentence.

(Signed) ALBERT J. BEVERIDGE.

VICE-PRESIDENT FAIRBANKS says:

I have read 54-40 or FIGHT with great pleasure. It is intensely interesting.

(Signed) CHARLES W. FAIRBANKS.

THE NEW YORK SUN says:

54-40 or FIGHT is a book well worth the attention of even those who ignore the novels of the day."

Some Timely Books on Lincoln

ABRAHAM LINCOLN

Tributes From His Associates

An invaluable volume, edited by Dr. William Hayes Ward, which shows Lincoln the man as seen at many angles by personal associates. It is a portfolio of striking portraits; a series of snapshots which as a whole give a fine composite picture of their subject.

LIFE OF LINCOLN FOR BOYS

By FRANCES CAMPBELL SPARHAWK

A spirited new story for young people which takes advantage of all recently discovered documents and is at once accurate and illuminating. It has all the charm of the make-believe, with the added merit of being true. Beginning with the bare log cabin down in Kentucky, we watch the ungainly pioneer lad emerge step by step to young manhood—through his varied career as storekeeper, raftsman, lawyer, Congressman, until finally we see the tall stoop-shouldered man with the kindly face enter the Executive office to take up the load of a nation's struggle. While "for boys," it will prove fascinating to girls and grown-ups too.

SOME LINCOLN BOOKS

The Illini
By CLARK E. CARR

Few students of Illinois history are now unacquainted with Colonel Carr's famous book. It is worth recalling, however, that some most interesting and intimate glimpses of Lincoln are to be found in its pages, and that the action of the story takes place at a time when the atmosphere was charged with suggestions of Lincoln's coming greatness.

GOOD HEALTH AND HOW WE WON IT

By Upton Sinclair and Michael Williams

Sinclair cured himself of nervous dyspepsia.
Williams cured himself of consumption.
This book tells how they did it.
It is as interesting as a novel—
And much more vital and important.

It tells the story of Horace Fletcher, and of the discoveries of Chittenden, Pawlow, Metchnikoff and others, in common, everyday language.

It gives practical suggestions for everyday living in good health—exercise, menus, recipes, etc.

It is illustrated with 16 full-page half-tones from photographs, including pictures through the microscope of germs being eaten up in the blood by white cells, portraits of prominent scientists, and very attractive and informal snapshots of the authors' children, with which every woman will be pleased.

NOTES IN SEASON.

CASSELL & COMPANY will publish shortly a new detective story by Fergus Hume, entitled "The Amethyst Cross."

GROSSET & DUNLAP have taken over the Popular Copyrights business of the A. Wessels Company, and have purchased from them all their stock of these lines bound in cloth and in sheets. The publication of some of the titles will be discontinued when the present stock of sheets is disposed of, but all the more prominent ones will be incorporated in the Grosset & Dunlap line. This transaction in no way affects the general publishing business of the A. Wessels Company, which will be continued as heretofore.

THE REILLY & BRITTON COMPANY will publish shortly a delightfully humorous tale of the South, entitled "Miss Minerva and William Green Hill," by Frances Boyd Calhoun. It is the story of an orphan boy "taken to raise" by a maiden aunt, and the mingled joys and woes which follow. A chivalrous Southern colonel who had "waited a long time" for Miss Minerva finally triumphs, and little William Green Hill helps things along. Several critics who have read advance proof say this book is a second "Helen's Babies." The book is illustrated.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have published this week a new novel by Mrs. Henry de la Pasture, author of "Peter's Mother," entitled "Catherine's Child," which they have placed on the net list with an extra charge for postage. The advance demand for this book was so great that publication had to be delayed until another large edition could be got ready. They have also just ready a novel entitled "The Three Miss Graemes," by Miss S. Macnaughtan, author of "The Expensive Miss Du Cane." Like its predecessor, the new novel is primarily a romance of English society life and is characterized by the frequent touches of humor, as well as pathos, which gave to the former its charm.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY have brought out this week "One Immortality," a novel by H. Fielding Hall, author of "The Inward Light." This story is really a serious study of the influence on a character of Eastern ideas and beliefs, and its dramatic form is only a medium for conveying the author's view of life. The entire action takes place on a steamer during the trip from Venice to India, and is chiefly concerned with the development of the love of a man and a young girl who find themselves thrown together on the voyage. The slight plot is skillfully handled, but the charm of the book resides less in the action than in the atmosphere of Orientalism that pervades it, and the delightful style in which it is written. They have also just ready "The Ancient Greek Historians," by Professor J. B. Bury, the famous Cambridge scholar, who, after tracing the rise of history in Ionia, discusses the principal historians, especially Herodotus and Thucydides, sets forth the influence of Greek historical writing on the Romans, and closes with a chapter on the views of the ancients concerning the use of history; Some Aspects of Rabbinic Theology," by Solomon Schechter, president of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America, whose aim has been to give a presentation of Rabbinic opinion on a number of theological topics, permitting the authorities to speak for themselves so far as possible, and adding only the necessary statement of the various doctrines considered in terms understandable by the reader not specially trained in Rabbinic lore; also, "The Rhetoric of Oratory," by Edwin DuBois Shurter, Professor of Oratory in the University of Texas.

Author was born at Gurley, Alabama, in 1834. In 1859 he joined a married sister in Texas. When Abraham Lincoln was elected he enlisted in the Confederate Army. His personal recollections of the war from 1861 to 1864 show good nature, a tender heart and unfailing humor.

Beech, Merwyn W. H. The Tidong dialects of Borneo; with preface and notes by Abraham Anthony Fokker. [N. Y., Oxford University Press, (Amer. Branch,)] 1908, [1909.] 120 p. pls. S. cl., $1.75.

The Tidongs occupy the East coast of Borneo between Lahad-Dato and the country a little to the South of Bolongan, though they seldom penetrate more than thirty miles inland. The appendix by Dr. A. A. Fokker gives a phonetic system of the dialect which has taken much from modern Malay settlers, and through them has adopted Arabic, Portuguese and even Dutch words.

Author is French Consul at Dover, Officer of Public Instruction of France, and for some years was Consul in Rhodes. Miles of fortifications stand exactly as they did when the Knights abandoned them in 1523. Book aims to describe what monuments of the Knights still exist at Rhodes and to tell how they were connected with the social and military life of their builders. The map of the town and coats-of-arms have been fully revised. The Knights are of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem.

Benson, Margaret. Venture of rational faith. N. Y., Macmillan, 1908, [1909.] 19+317 p. 8°, cl., *$2 net.

An argument on the reason for faith, addressed to "average people of educated intelligence" who, while continually meeting certain obstinate questionings, realize that they cannot answer them in a comprehensive fashion upon purely intellectual grounds, and yet must claim for their religion some reasonable basis.

This Papyrus is preserved under glass in 62 numbered frames. It contains parts of Job, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes, Song of Songs, Wisdom of Solomon, and Ecclesiasticus. A collection with all other printed Sahidic texts of the same portions of the Old Testament has been added.

Bigelow, J: A substitute for the tariff upon imports and a provision for an equitable distribution of the wealth of nations; suggested in a letter addressed to His Excellency Charles E. Hughes. N. Y., [J. Bigelow, 21 Gramercy Park,] 1908, [1909.] 67 p. O. pap. (Priv. pr.)

The author last month celebrated his 91st birthday. He looks upon the protective tariff as the chief cause of the great disparities in the distribution of wealth which so distinguish the time, and his effort is to show why the tariff should be abolished and how much better it would be for the nation and states to gather their public revenue from a system of taxation of corporate privileges which will gradually bring them into or under public ownership. It is a powerful arraignment of our existing industrial and economic order. Addressed to the Governor of New York.

Biggle, Jacob. Biggle garden book; vegetables, small fruits and flowers for pleasure and profit. Phil., W. Atkinson Co., 1908, [1909.] c. 184 p. il. 24°, (Biggle farm lib.) cl., 50 c.

Blandin, Mrs. I. M. E. History of higher education of women in the South prior to 1860. Wash., D. C., Neale Publishing Co., 1909. c. 328 p. O. cl., *$3 net.

An answer to a statement recently made to the effect that the South was historically behind some other sections of the country in the provision made for the education of its women. Beginning with "the establishment of the first school in the United States, the second oldest school for girls on the continent of America, the Ursuline Convent in New Orleans, in 1727." Mrs. Blandin tells the consecutive story of the education of women in the South down to the opening of the War between the States.

Bonsall, Marian. The tragedy of the Mormon woman. Minneapolis, Minn., Housekeeper Corporation, 1908, [1909.] c. 5-96 p. pls. pors. O. pap., 35 c.

The author lived long among the Mormons. She likes them as a people, but deplores that by their superstitions they still put themselves under the government of the Mormon hierarchy, which means slavery. She knows polygamy is still practiced and that the law of the United States is broken, which the Mormons promised to obey when they were granted statehood for Utah. Many now hold the opinion that unless the church monarchy is controlled Utah will become a serious problem, perhaps a menace to the United States.

Caesar, Caius Julius. Cæsar's Commentaries on the Gallic war; tr. into English by T: Rice E: Holmes. N. Y., Macmillan, 1908, [1909.] 20+297 p. fold. maps, D. cl., *$1.40 net.

The rough draft of this translation was made many years ago both as a labour of love and as an aid to the composition of the narrative of the author's "Cæsar's conquest of Gaul"; but the publication was deferred, partly because he had other work to do, partly in order that he might be able to elucidate not only the chapters which treat of the Gallic war, but also those which are devoted to the invasions of Britain. The text from which this version is made is not absolutely identical with that of any other edition, but generally agrees with that of H. Meusel.

"Yvan Gall" was originally intended as a supplementary reading book in the lower grades of French public schools. The style is therefore simple and the book is intended to be instructive as well as interesting. Since the book was rather large and as it is intended especially for French children, it has been considerably abridged in the present edition and only such portions of the text have been retained as were supposed to be of general interest. The editor is professor in Dickinson College.

The editors have restricted themselves in preparing this work to a single type of literary expression—the critical essay. They have endeavored to trace, in a series of ten selected essays from Hazlitt, Carlyle, Macaulay, Thackeray, Matthew Arnold and others, the development of English criticism in the nineteenth century. The introductions, mainly biographical, are brief; the notes treat only those matters upon which investigation by the student would be difficult or unprofitable.

A California millionaire of ideal American principles has a son who until his twenty-third year has devoted himself wholly to football. He becomes interested in socialism and his father encourages him to study it carefully. He joins a band of "Comrades" and they form a settlement on an island off San Francisco, given to the cause by the millionaire father without the son's knowledge. The problems to be settled among the socialists make the story. That human nature is to be reasoned with in all plans for reform is the keynote of the story.

Dodd, Wa. Fairleigh, comp. Modern constitutions: a collection of the fundamental laws of twenty-two of the most important countries of the world, with historical and biographical notes. Chic., University of Chicago Press, 1909. c. '08. 2 v., 23+351; 14+334 p. O. cl., *$5 net, boxed.

Contains the texts, in English translation where English is not the original language, of the constitutions or fundamental laws of the Argentine nation, Australia, Austria-Hungary, Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Chile, Denmark, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Mexico, Netherlands, Norway, Portugal, Russia, Spain, Sweden, Switzerland, and the United States. These constitutions have not heretofore been available in any one English collection, and a number of them have not before appeared in English translation. Each constitution is preceded by a brief historical introduction, and is followed by a select list of the most important books dealing with the government of the country under consideration, specially fitting it for use in college and university courses. Also useful for study of comparative constitutional law.

Forman, S: Eagle. Essentials in civil government: a text-book for use in schools. N. Y., American Book Co., [1909.] c. '08. 224 p. il. D. cl., 60 c.

The aim is to help those teachers who are trying to give the masses of their pupils sound and systematic instruction in civil government; the book is intended for use at the top of the grammar school and at the bottom of the high school. Its primary aim is not to teach facts, but to establish political ideals and to indoctrinate in notions of civic morality. In the few lessons the pupil studies his own little world and his own moral nature and studies the governments of the home and of the school. Then he takes up the great subject of citizenship and learns of civic rights and civic duties.

The book is original from cover to cover. The treatment is systematic and uniform. All technical terms are accompanied by a full definition of their meaning. All disputed points have been settled by tracing the history of each game from its source to its present condition, showing how all the fixed rules are based upon common sense and equity. Contains the latest revised laws of bridge.

The author's purpose is "to defend Christ and his church while refuting Romanism." He further says: "The Pope's pretended monopoly of the correct interpretation of the Bible, his authority, temporal power, infallibility and many other important and serious historical and theological questions are herein clearly set forth against Romanism." The author is leaving the Roman church of his own free will.

The story opens in Germany and is afterward transferred to one of our Southern states during the Civil War. The hero is a young Southerner, who is found cheating at cards in the house of a titled lady in Germany; he is exposed by the owner of "the German bracelet," and in revenge obtains the bracelet by dishonest means and flies to the United States. The search for the bracelet is the chief incident, with the explanation of its very great value as proof that its owner is heir to a throne.

Author is assistant professor of applied mechanics, Purdue University. In preparing this book he has had in mind the fact that the student finds much difficulty in seeing the applications of theory to practical problems. For this reason each new principle developed is followed by a number of applications. In many cases these are illustrated, and they all deal with matters that directly concern the engineer. The book is intended as a text-book for engineering students of the junior year.

Moses, Barr. Dreaming river. N. Y., Frederick A. Stokes Co., [1909.] c. 8+262 p. D. cl., $1.

Dreaming River is a deserted settlement on the Minnesota prairie twenty miles from the nearest inhabitant. The hero, a poet, lives all alone until unexpectedly the heroine, a sixteen year old girl, arrives, sent by her dead father to the hero's dead father, a distant relation and his only friend. These two characters live all alone. Accidentally the girl shoots the hero and during half the story he lies unconscious. An old doctor is the only other character. Descriptions of nature, good poetry written by the hero and a psychological study of elemental love make this a most original romance.

Tono-Bungay is a patent medicine invented by the hero's uncle which the hero helps him manufacture and exploit. The uncle is a genius at advertising and the author is at his best in describing modern business methods and the science of advertising. The story is written as autobiography. The hero, whose mother was housekeeper in an old aristocratic English family, expatiates delightfully on the laws, traditions, usages and ideas we call society. Three women come into his life and he studies them for the reader's benefit. The great fortune made in Tono-Bungay is reinvested in Mogg's soap, African "quap," etc., and finally lost by the financiering and "promoting" uncle.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

JANUARY 23, 1909.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter for advertising pages should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers and librarians depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalog," and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE USE AND ABUSE OF FICTION.

THERE is no class of books dealt in by the trade which presents more varied and perplexing problems than fiction, both from the publishing and the retailing side. In the past year the output of fiction has gone beyond all previous American experience, our records for 1908 showing more than 300 volumes excess of the production of fiction in any previous year. Much, indeed most, of this is American fiction, in striking contrast with the state of things before the "international copyright" provision in the Act of 1891. Under the new conditions probably no country in the world is turning out such an avalanche of fiction as America.

It is a common superstition in the trade that the publishing and retailing of fiction is the most profitable part of business. Taken by and large nothing could be farther from the truth. A novel that sells by the hundred thousand is of course profitable; but to promote such a sale there is enormous expenditure, and the "big seller," especially of the second rank of success, is often a snare to the unwary publisher. He does not make out of it as much money as the big figures indicate, and it is apt to draw him into ventures which more than wipe off the profit on the great successes. The house which was notable for its success in handling the "big sellers" did not find this class of publication so profitable as it seemed, and has put itself on a sounder basis by refraining from pushing sales to the extreme. Thousands of volumes of novels have gone to the clearance sale or scrap-heap because of the overproduction of fiction which the "big seller" induced.

From the retailer's point of view this may be even more strongly put. As fiction is only semi-protected, it is sold by the retailer at but a moderate profit; and it is the common mistake of the retail trade to stock up so largely with a leader in fiction as to wipe out the profit when the more or less artificial demand has slackened. Besides this, the retailer has bought one, two, three, a dozen or fifty copies of books which do not sell, and which at the end of the year cumber the shelves and must go on the clearance counter if, indeed, they can be disposed of at all, except to the paper man. One of the shrewdest retailers, who makes a practice of putting all novels on the clearance counter as soon as the year is up, has figured out losses and gains, and assured himself from his own experience that fiction is the least profitable line to carry.

It is greatly to be lamented that so large a number of the works of fiction of the past year obtained their sale because of other than their literary qualities—the salacious novel, whether under guise of a problem novel or straightforwardly objectionable, formed too large a proportion of American fiction publication last year. Doubtless money was made from some of it—but this is money that ought not to be made. It may be that these things, as is suggested, go in waves; and it is devoutly to be wished that the way of salacious fiction may be over.

The publishing and bookselling trades are on their solidest basis when they deal with solid books, books that are books, books that are good for sale next year if they are not sold this year. We trust this will be kept before the mind of publishers and booksellers in the year of grace 1909.

THE SPEAKER'S COMMENTARY.

THE "Speaker's Commentary" is so called, according to the New York Sun, because the enterprise originated in the effort of John Evelyn Denison, Speaker of the House of Commons. It was designed to meet in successful opposition the views of biblical interpretation so forcefully upheld by Dr. Colenso. The work was announced in 1863 and publication was begun in 1871. F. C. Cook was the editor in chief; the text was revised and commentaries written by several bishops and other theologians of undisputed orthodoxy.

COPYRIGHT AS IT AFFECTS LIBRARIES.

At a joint meeting of the Long Island and New York Library Clubs, held January 14 in the rooms of the Aldine Association, consideration was given to the relations between libraries and publishers.

Mr. George Haven Putnam spoke on the copyright question as it affects libraries. He touched briefly on the processes through which a book must pass before it is completed and ready for the market. When the book is actually made and comes to be presented to the publisher the question arises of the division of the proceeds. From the broadest viewpoint this may be described as the amount the reader is prepared to pay for the gratification he receives from the book.

In the early history of book production there was little or no question of profit and loss. The author had gained his point in having the book printed; but with the development of economic conditions and competition, the author's requirements have developed and increased, thus complicating the problem for the publisher. In fact the demands of a class of authors have now become so large that conservative publishers have been obliged to stand aside and are giving up what may be termed the gambling business of bidding against each other for "best sellers." The gambling element thus being introduced into literature has modified the literary standards of authors with demoralizing effect.

The increase in the cost of book production and the decrease in the monetary value of skilled labor are further serious factors in the problems of book production.

Librarians, in their encouragement and furtherance of competition in the work of supplying books are in some measure responsible for the present turbulent and unsatisfactory conditions that control the distribution of literary material. Mr. Putnam pointed out that while library ethics in the matters of bookbuying are legitimate and honorable so far as their relation to the librarian's profession is concerned, from a broader standpoint they are harmful, maintaining a disturbing influence in the economic conditions of book production.

Mr. Putnam cited the harmonious conditions that have existed in Germany from the earliest times, which he attributes to the stable and satisfactory provisions of the copyright law by which absolute control is assured and rates are made fixed and constant. The constant friction of unsatisfactory relations in connection with the booktrade cannot be done away with in this country while the present copyright law exists, and librarians in their overzealousness to serve their institutions, being freed from copyright obligations under the provisions of the copyright law of 1891, have acted in such manner as to hamper seriously the work of American publishers and the interests of the bookbuying community.

Mr. Putnam further cited the inadequacy of American copyright, in that through its operation the American publisher has no control of his market, whereas the English publisher can supply the American market; librarians are in a large measure responsible for such undermining of the American market.

An effective international copyright is the only solution to the problem, and the problem must be worked out to determine the necessary margin of profit for booksellers, the support of the author and the support of the publisher; a result of these considerations may lead to the increase of catalogue prices of books, and all books, including the best sellers, will have to be placed on a net basis. A natural development in economic conditions is that the cost of books must increase with the cost of book production. Mr. Putnam concluded his remarks with a plea for a more thorough belief in the good faith of the publisher on the part of the librarian, and stated that while he was registering a protest against librarians he believed that it was their intention, as it was the intention of the earnest and intelligent publisher, to serve the broadest educational interests; but with the conception of copyright at present entertained by librarians these interests cannot be served.

Mr. Samuel W. Marvin, of Charles Scribner's Sons, spoke on the manufacture of books for library use, outlining the essentials for paper, type, illustrations and binding incumbent upon good bookmaking.

Mr. Doubleday made a few remarks on the question of prices and discounts. Some discussion followed Mr. Doubleday's remarks.

THE STRONGHEART PRIZE.

Such a widespread controversy arose over the ending of Frederick R. Burton's novel, "Strongheart," that his publishers, G. W. Dillingham Co., offered a price of $50 for the best 200-word criticism. A great number of competitors sent in criticisms, all of which were submitted to Edwin Markham and E. W. Townsend for a decision. Answers came from every section of the country, and after the mass of paper had been sifted and reduced to the dozen best, the "for" and "against" were about evenly balanced. Some of the most interesting criticisms were, unhappily, over-written that is, they included much more than 200 words, and had, therefore, to be rigorously cast aside. There were other instances where an excellent thought, cleverly expressed, illuminated a generally ineffective, immature expression of opinion. On the whole, however, the criticisms indicated that "Strongheart" had been read by a large number of discriminating readers.

The prize was finally awarded to Florence Finch Kelly, 328 West 96th Street, New York City, whose conclusion was that the marriage of Strongheart and Dorothy was inevitable. Concluding her criticism she says: "Since Mr. Burton, in his series of events culminating in the union of Strongheart and Dorothy, has tried to help the two races to a truer understanding of each other, this logical climax of his story makes for the realization of the universal brotherhood of man."

BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

AMERICAN PUBLISHERS' ASSOCIATION.

THE ninth annual meeting of the American Publishers' Association was held on January 18 at 156 Fifth Avenue. The various reports were made and adopted, the treasurer's report showing the Association to be in good position pecuniarily and that everything was propitious for continuing its work as heretofore, notwithstanding the withdrawal of some of its members. The names of George W. Jacobs and Thomas Y. Crowell were added to the list of the Board of Directors, and Frederick A. Stokes and W. F. Gregory, of Lothrop, Lee & Shepard, were re-elected directors. There was a general discussion of trade matters, but no action of importance.

LADIES' NIGHT AT THE BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE.

THE fourteenth annual dinner and Ladies' Night given by The Booksellers' League at the Aldine Association, on the evening of January 20, was attended by upwards of 150 persons, and was declared by all to have been a distinguished and most enjoyable affair. After the coffee E. O. Chapman proposed that The Booksellers' League at its annual dinner should send a greeting to the New York Boost Club, which, on a number of occasions, has joined with the League in "boosting" the annual dinner of the American Booksellers' Association. The Boost Club was at its annual dinner at the Waldorf-Astoria, commemorating the fifth anniversary of the Boost Club's foundation. The resolution concluded with the following sentiment framed by the "poet lariat" of the League:

It may be cold, it may be warm,
In fair or stormy weather,
In fairest sunshine or in storm
Good fellows stick together—
This ought to be true for the sake of the rhyme
It is certainly true at dinner time.

The resolution was unanimously adopted and dispatched to the Boost Club by a special messenger.

Charles L. Bowman, the president of the League, in a felicitous speech then introduced as the first speaker Mr. Stephen Jenkins, author of "A Princess and Another," whose subject was "Old New York." Indeed the entertainment was soon recognized as a "Knickerbocker Evening." Mr. Jenkins gave a rapid sketch of the old city of New York from the time of the discovery of Manhattan Island down to 1840, and brought out many unknown and astonishing facts.

Charles Battell Loomis, the author of "Cheerful Americans," etc., then read his very amusing dialogue between a child and its parent on "What is a New Yorker," in which he disposes of the question in the most luminous manner. In response to the very generous applause Mr. Loomis read another sketch entitled "Tell Me a Story." An autographed copy of one of Mr. Loomis's latest books, "The Knack of It," with a portrait of the author, was presented to the League and its guests as a souvenir of the occasion by its publishers, Fleming H. Revell Company.

Allen S. Williams, an old friend of the League, who has had a great deal to do with the training of lions and other wild beasts, and who has also lived much among the Indians of America, being an Iroquois by adoption, next gave a talk on "The Indians of New York," of whom about fifty live in Manhattan, a few at Coney Island and a few in the Borough of the Bronx. These all retain their native speech—that of the Algonquin and Iroquois—and their native customs, earning their living by acting in shows during the summer months or by peddling their handiwork at summer resorts. After Mr. Williams's most interesting talk, he presented six of the New York Indians in their full costumes—two men, two women and two children. They gave illustrations, so far as was possible in so restricted a space and with such a small number, of some of the customs of their tribe, such as smoking the pipe of peace, choosing a chief, and gave some of their songs and dances. At the conclusion one of the Indians, a full-blooded Seneca, addressed the gathering in an English speech, in which he pointed out the advantages of education to his race, regretting that the white man did not realize this a century earlier to the benefit of himself and his red brother.

Quite unexpectedly Dr. Isaac Taylor Headland, for years one of the faculty of the Pekin University, offered to give a ten-minute talk on the conditions during the past two years at the Chinese court. Most of his talk was of an intimate character, and gave a view of the affairs not to be had through the daily press. Dr. Headland will be remembered as the author of "Chinese Mother Goose Rhymes," "Chinese Boy and Girl," "Our Little Chinese Cousin" and others. It was greatly regretted that time did not permit a more lengthy discourse by Dr. Headland. The hour hand of the clock was rapidly moving towards midnight when the company dispersed, feeling that their measure of enjoyment was full to overflowing.

ANNUAL DINNER OF THE STATIONERS OF NEW YORK.

THE STATIONERS' ASSOCIATION OF NEW YORK gave its fourth annual dinner at the Hotel Astor on the evening of January 13. About 425 were present. Theodore L. C. Gerry, the president of the New York Association as well as of the National Association, presided. Among the speakers were the Hon. John Sherman Crosby, the Hon. Charles F. Moore, the Rev. F. H. Wall, D.D., John T. Nicholson, principal of Public School No. 186; the Hon. Arthur J. O'Keeffe, Civil Service Commissioner; Simon Brentano, of Brentano's, New York; Frank W. Bailey, of Boston, vice-president of the National Association of Stationers and Manufacturers; Henry C. Bainbridge, president Stationers' Board of Trade, and others.

THE motion of Macy's for permission to reargue their case against the American Publishers' Association was denied on January 12 by the Court of Appeals of New York.

PERSONAL NOTES.

HARRY W. SULLY, representative of L. C. Page & Company until February 1, 1909, has accepted the management of the sales department of the H. B. Claflin Co.'s Book Department. Although a young man, Mr. Sully has had a comparatively long experience on the road. He was born in Montreal in 1874. In May, 1895, he went to Boston, soon after accepting a position in the office of the Joseph Knight Co., and continued with L. C. Page & Company, who succeeded the Joseph Knight Co. in 1896. Before going on the road he had an opportunity to become familiar with every branch of the publishing business. Mr. Sully's first important trip outside of Boston as a travelling salesman was made to Canada in the spring of 1897, the same year covering Pennsylvania, New York and the New England States. Besides retaining his original territory, he has since 1900 been making annual trips to all the important cities in the southern States as far southwest as Texas, including Galveston, Dallas, New Orleans, Atlanta, Richmond, etc. Later in the season he made a second trip to Canada, going as far west as Winnipeg, returning through North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania and New York State, in the fall covering New England. The covering of this vast territory meant nine months' travelling and was divided into three trips of three months each. Mr. Sully is a bookman as well as a bookseller, and, as should be the case with every important salesman, his opinion as to the value of a manuscript, both from literary and trade viewpoints, was often sought by the publishers whom he represents. Mr. Sully has in a marked degree the quality of friendliness, and his customers are also his friends. He has often been heard to express the opinion that the retail bookseller receives the travelling salesman with much more courtesy than is found in probably any other line of business.

H. S. STOLL, formerly with Street & Smith, and for the last two seasons traveller for A. Wessels Co., has joined the travelling force of C. S. Hammond & Co., of New York City, and will attend the trade in the larger cities for their line of atlases, maps, globes, etc.

BRUNO CONRAD, well known to the booktrade through his contributions to the German booktrade journals, has been appointed manager of the Leipzig branch of the Librarie Nilsson of 7 Rue de Lille, Paris.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A SWINDLER ABROAD.

To the Editor of The Publishers' Weekly.

GENTLEMEN: Some one is going about posing as my son and borrowing money of the trade, who have been very kind to him. Will you please help us to locate the individual. Lend him some money if he asks it and immediately arrest him. I have no son, nor never had. The fellow has already visited with profit to himself The American News Co., Houghton Mifflin Co., and Charles Scribner's Sons in New York, and The Carter Ink Co. in Boston. If there are any more I would like to know it. Should he come to any house and try to borrow he should be arrested at once as a fraud.

JOHN STIRLING.

WATERTOWN, N. Y., January 20, 1909.

RECENT CUSTOMS RULINGS.

LITHOGRAPHIC CONGRATULATION CARDS—BOOKLETS.—Protest of Charles H. Wyman & Co., St. Louis, Mo. Articles classified as printed matter under paragraph 403, tariff act of 1897, and as lithographic booklets under paragraph 400, were claimed to be dutiable under the provision in the latter paragraph for lithographic prints. Protest sustained. General Appraiser Fischer ruled that "the merchandise consists of lithograpically printed congratulation cards made of stiff white paper folded in two, the front and inside having inscriptions and designs lithographically printed thereon. These cards are in fact paper folders without inserts. . . . We find upon an examination of the samples that the items marked A on invoice are lithographically printed congratulation cards or folders, and we hold that they are dutiable as claimed, under paragraph 400, at 5 cents per pound. These articles, without inserts, are not booklets, and it is error to treat them as subject to the same rate as provided for booklets printed in whole or in part by lithographic process. G. A. 3688 (T. D. 17640)."

OBITUARY NOTES.

ERNST VON WILDENBRUCH, the German poet and dramatist, died on January 15 at Berlin. Ernst von Wildenbruch was born on February 3, 1843, at Beirut in Syria, where his father was stationed as Prussian consul. In 1857 he went to Germany, where he continued his studies at Halle and at Berlin. In 1859 he was admitted to the cadet corps at Potsdam and became an officer in 1863, but resigned two years later. After the Franco-Prussian war he devoted himself to the drama and literature. Among his best-known plays are "Die Karolinger," "Vater und Söhne" and "Die Rabensteinerin." Among his other books are the epic poems "Vionville" and "Sedan," "Kinderthränen," "Das Edle Blut" and other poetical works, and the following novels: "Eifernde Liebe," "Der Zauberer Cyprian," "Semiramis," "Vize-Mama," etc. In 1903 he wrote an article on the Monroe Doctrine, wherein he urged Germany to make an explicit declaration in favor of the doctrine so that all the world might know where his country stood.

ARTHUR WILLIAM A'BECKETT, journalist, novelist and dramatist, died on January 14 in London. A'Beckett, one of the brilliant "A'Becketts of Punch," was the third son of Gilbert Abbott A'Beckett, and nephew of Sir William A'Beckett, Chief Justice of Victoria. His family claimed direct descent from the father of St. Thomas A'Beckett, Archbishop of Canterbury. For many years he was one of the chief writers for Punch. A'Beckett was born at Fulham in 1844. He began his editorial work in 1865 as editor of The Glowworm. Before this he served a short term in the war office. From 1868 to 1870 he was editor of The Britannia Magazine. He was special correspondent for The Standard and The Globe in the Franco-German War, after which he became private secretary of the Duke of Norfolk. His connection with Punch lasted from 1874 to 1902. He was also editor of The Naval and Military Magazine in 1896 and of John Bull in 1902-3 Many comic essays, novels and plays came from his pen, among them "A Comic Guide to the Royal Academy," "The Shadow Witness" and "The Doom of St. Quirec," 1875-76; "The Ghost of Grimstown Grange" and "The Mystery of Mostyn Manor," 1877-78; "Modern Arabian Nights," 1885; "Greenroom Recollections," 1896; "The Modern Adam," 1899; "London at the End of the Century," 1900, and "The A'Becketts of Punch," 1903.

WILLIAM AMHURST TYSSEN-AMHERST, first Baron Amherst of Hackney, died suddenly on January 17 in London. Lord Amherst was born April 25, 1835. His death brings to a tragic end the story of the pathetic misfortunes which overwhelmed the last days of a worthy man. He was past seventy when he learned that, through the rascality of a solicitor to whom he had committed the entire management of his own great estate, as well as certain trust funds, it had been entirely dissipated—a sum of about $1,250,000 in all. For upward of half a century Lord Amherst had been a collector of books, manuscripts and tapestries. Didlington Hall was a storehouse of historic treasures—Gobelins, Sévres ware, scarabs, Limoges, Majolicas—and sheltered one of the most complete collections in the world of books and manuscripts illustrating the history of printing from the earliest times. These books and manuscripts were estimated to be worth three-quarters of a million, but no figures could represent the loving care which Lord Amherst had spent in gathering them. When the crash came nothing was to be done but sell, and Lord Amherst saw the art treasures he had spent a lifetime bringing from the ends of the earth go under the hammer. Not a book, a manuscript, a print, or a vase but was dear to his heart. It was a satisfaction to him that his seventeen magnificent Caxtons were not scattered. They went to America to J. P. Morgan, but when the auctioneer's hammer fell on the last lot all reason for living ceased for Lord Amherst of Hackney. He lived just six weeks longer.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

THE venerable scientist, Ernst Haeckel, who will be seventy-five on February 16, intends to resign at the close of the winter session the professorship of zoology in the University of Jena, which he has held for forty-six years, and give all his time to his phylogenetic museum.

"GALBRAITH," who for several years has been supplying the London book gossip of the New York Times and its Saturday Review of Books, who is known to her family and friends as Miss Catherine Galbraith Welch, has returned to her native New York City to create a branch of the Curtis Brown Literary Agency. Miss Welch succeeded brilliantly as correspondent of the New York Times—even to interviewing George Meredith—and also as the author of a capital book, "The Little Dauphin."

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE London Bookseller with its issue for January 1 appears as a weekly instead of a monthly periodical. It has also changed its form from an octavo to a quarto, 8 x 11 inches. In make up and contents the new Bookseller is pleasing and enterprising.

The Aesculapian is the title of a new quarterly journal of medical history, literature and art, edited by Albert Tracy Huntington, and published from 1313 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. The Aesculapian is really the successor of The Medical Library and Historical Journal, of which five volumes were published, the last appearing in December, 1907. Among the articles in the first number of The Aesculapian is one on "Physicians as Contributors to British and American Literature," by Mrs. John E. Sheppard. The subscription price is $2.50, single numbers 75 cents.

WITHERBY & Co., 326 High Holborn, London, have brought out the January number of a new monthly magazine, entitled Travel and Exploration, edited by S. Carter Gilmour, Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society. It is in quarto shape and runs to 88 pages of text, profusely and interestingly illustrated. Among the contents of the first number appear: "The Nasamonians: a Call to Exploration," by Sir Clements R. Markham; "The Danish Expedition to North-East Greenland," by Lieutenant A. Trolle, Danish Royal Navy; "Travellers and Photography: How to Secure Good Results," by Dudley Kidd; "A Journey Into the Primeval Forests of Tropical Peru," by L. C. Bernacchi; "Motoring in Many Lands," by H. Massac Buist; and "Aerial Flight," by the same author.

BIBLIOGRAPHIC NOTES.

THE OPEN COURT PUBLISHING CO., Chicago, has published a Catalogue Index of The Monist for a period of seventeen years.

The Bulletin of Bibliography, published by the Boston Book Company, in its issue for January, 1909, prints the first part of a bibliography of "Ghost Stories and Tales of the Supernatural," compiled by Jean Hawkins, of the New York State Library; the fifth part of F. W. Faxon's bibliography of "Literary Annuals and Gift Books;" the second part of the "Index to Reference Lists published by Libraries, 1907, 1908," compiled by the Providence (R. I.) Public Library; the third part of "The Index to the Works of Honoré de Balzac," by Frederick B. Gillette, of the University of Michigan; the quarterly Magazine Subject-Index October-December, 1908; also, the regular record of new titles, changed titles and deaths in the periodical world given under the heading of "Births and Deaths."

ALBERT MATTHEWS has in preparation a bibliography of New England magazines of the eighteenth century, (1743-1800,) based on the collections owned by the following libraries and societies: American Antiquarian Society, Boston Athenæum, Boston Public Library, Library of Congress, Essex Institute, Harvard College Library, Lenox (New York Public) Library, Massachusetts Historical Society, Massachusetts State Library, New England Historic Genealogical Society, New York Historical Society, Historical Society of Pennsylvania, Library Company of Philadelphia, State Historical Society of Wisconsin, and Yale University Library. Mr. Matthews, whose address is Hotel Oxford, Boston, has prepared a list of the magazines he intends to include, which he will send to librarians and bibliographers with a view to obtaining their opinion as to whether those publications ought to be rated as magazines or newspapers.

THE GOVERNMENT PRINTING OFFICE at Washington, D. C., has brought out a "List of References on International Arbitration," compiled under the direction of Appleton Prentiss Clark Griffin. The purpose of this list, according to Mr. Griffin's prefatory note, dated July 1, 1908, "is to exhibit material dealing with international arbitration, and, further, particularly to show that on the conferences at the Hague. The question of the limitation of armaments and that of the collection of foreign debts having had special prominence at the Hague Conference of 1907, material dealing with these two topics is likewise given under separate heads. In addition there are listed references to discussions on the French occupation of Mexico, the Venezuela case, and the Santo Domingo question. The later stages of compilation have been done under the direction of William Adams Slade, who has also seen the list through the press." (152 p. 8°.)

BUSINESS NOTES.

DALLAS, TEX.—The Texas Baptist Publishing House has gone out of business.

IDA GROVE, IOWA.—I. B. Hammond has purchased the City Bookstore from J. L. Ford.

NEW YORK CITY.—The Book and Print Shop, 24 West 39th Street, has been incorporated, with J. A. Ripley as president and treasurer, and Charles Kingsley as secretary and manager. It is the intention of the firm to do a general book business, but special attention will be paid to books on sport and outdoor life, both current and out-of-print and rare.

NEW YORK CITY.—The business of C. S. Hammond & Co., has outgrown its old quarters at 152 Broadway and, on January 12, was removed to larger quarters in the new building, 142 Fulton Street, one-half block east of Broadway. Hammond & Co. report a steadily increasing demand for their maps, atlases, globes, etc. Their 1909 editions now ready are very much improved over previous issues and are brought up to date in every respect.

NEW YORK CITY.—The McDevitt-Wilson Bargain Book Shop, 1 Barclay Street, have opened a store in the new Hudson Terminal Building, No. 30 Church Street, and expect some time in the late winter or early spring to move their retail business from 1 Barclay Street to the new location.

NEW YORK CITY.—F. W. Morris, bookseller, has removed from 114 to 542 Fifth Avenue.

NEW YORK CITY.—The United German Post Card Factories has been incorporated to manufacture illustrated post-cards and novelties by Heinrich Knopp, Ignatz Stern and Harry Kramer.

NOTES ON VALENTINES.

WILLIAM J. BURKHARDT, of 206 Ocean Avenue, Jersey City, N. J., has again made ready an individual line of Valentine novelties and post-cards that he will send to responsible dealers on consignment in assortments at $10 and $20. Mr. Burkhardt seems to take very little risk in pursuing this course, because all that he turns out is so original and clever that hardly any of his lines are ever returned.

DODD, MEAD & COMPANY have made a very striking Valentine's Day wrapper for "Bachellor Belles," the handsome Harrison Fisher book which they issued for the past holiday season. The wrapper is cut out so as to reveal the girl's head on the cover of the book. Around this cut-out is a heavy gold frame, while beneath, in large, ornamental gold letters, are the words, "To My Valentine." "Bachellor Belles" in this setting makes a strikingly handsome and appropriate valentine.

MCLOUGHLIN BROTHERS, New York City, have always distinguished themselves for valentines that appeal to the most modest as well as the most extravagant tastes of the public. A special feature of their line this year is the large assortment of post-card valentines of which the comics form a large part. There are also twenty-four styles of sentimental post-cards that will appeal to the sentimental lad or lass; some very pretty perfumed and sachet valentines that are artistic in design; perfumed hanging novelties and drops, in which silk, lace, celluloid, satin and hand painting aid in the decorations.

E. P. DUTTON & Co., as usual, have made prodigal preparations for the devotees of Lord Cupid. In addition to the most successful styles from former seasons they have this year an almost bewildering array of new designs and original ideas. In cut-out easel figures and mechanical novelties their list offers many surprises. Among the cut-out standing valentines is a series of children dressed as knights and ladies carrying different flowers. Another attractive cut-out series is a set of twelve girls dressed in Colonial style, colored to imitate water color paintings. An attractive new design is called "Cupid's Rescue," representing a Cupid holding a heart that he has just saved from the water. Among their mechanical novelties is a racing motor car, with an arrow for the lady and four wheels of forget-me-nots. One Cupid acts as chauffeur, another carries a letter, while a third bears a flaming heart. A clever invention is a card with two Cupids carrying baskets of broken hearts which they empty into a mill. Upon turning a wheel the broken pieces of hearts come out all mended and are gathered into a bag by another Cupid. The line is particularly strong in post-cards, with attractive designs, some of them of a humorous character. All are artistically printed and appeal to buyers of discriminating tastes.

RAPHAEL TUCK & SONS CO. in preparing their new lines of valentines have maintained their reputation for original conceptions and superior execution. All previous efforts have been surpassed in the vast variety of subjects, wide diversity of design, quaint and unique effects and general artistic merit. Their line this year is replete with all the most desirable features and every possible requirement and prices have received careful consideration. In its entirety, the collection is as marvellous as it is miscellaneous, and represents the culmination of concentrated effort and many years' experience. To mention but a few of their latest attractions: there is a line of "Fluffy Ruffle Hearts," eight designs in appropriate costumes for domestic duties or sporting pleasures; "Knot Holes," a folding novelty showing a pretty little girl looking through a knot hole in a fence—at her valentine; "Goo Goo Eyes," an original novelty in three designs, with little bodies and big movable heads, the comical feature being the glass eyes which give a strange realistic appearance to the card; "Little Darling's Fan," a cut-out novelty in six sections, opening as a fan and held in place by a silk ribbon; "Young Sweethearts," a cut-out novelty showing two children sitting on a bench, each holding a slate upon which is written a valentine sentiment; "Teddy Bear Lovers," two bears in a travelling bag; "Tender Memories," two designs of large white tri-fold hearts. It might tire the reader to enumerate the line in detail, though a word must be given to their post-cards, in which line the house has fairly outdone itself. That all their work is well done may be taken for granted, the name of Tuck being a hall-mark for artistic work carefully carried out.

AUCTION SALES.

JANUARY 26, 27, 3 P.M.—The libraries of Kenneth M. Eyland and Dr. J. McKee Wetmore, works on archæology, art, medicine, etc.; music, a number from the library of Edwin Booth. (776 lots.)—Merwin-Clayton.

FEBRUARY 2-5, 3 P.M.—Library of the late John Gerard Heckscher, of New York City. Pt. 1: Books on Angling. (1177 lots.)—Merwin-Clayton.

THE ANDERSON AUCTION COMPANY call the attention of the trade to the fact that the Poor Library sale will be completed in five parts, not in four parts, as was erroneously announced.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

BURNS & OATES, London, will publish at once "The Catholic Who's Who," edited by Sir F. C. Burnand. The work will have some 700 new names.

THOMAS WHITTAKER has ready "The Children's Daily Service," a year book of prayers and readings by Blandina S. Babcock, with an introduction by the Rt. Rev. William F. Nichols, Bishop of California, who thinks highly of the work.

THE CHICAGO MADRIGAL CLUB again offers a prize of $50 for an original poem which shall be used in its musical competition of 1909. Full details of the contest may be obtained from D. A. Clippinger, 410 Kimball Hall, Chicago.

B. W. DODGE & Co. will publish during the early spring "The Journal of a Neglected Wife," by Mabel Herbert Urner, already well known to magazine readers. The book is written with artistic simplicity and shows power and pathos. It seems to come straight from the heart of the writer.

THE GRAFTON PRESS, New York City, will bring out shortly "The Story of Saranac," by Henry W. Raymond, who for the last twenty years has camped out during the summer season in the Saranac region and traces its development as a hunting ground and health resort from days of the "redskin to the paleface."

THE WILCOX BOOKS CONCERN, of Chicago, will publish on March 1 a book of poems by Henry S. Wilcox, entitled "Joys of Earth." Mr. Wilcox will be remembered as the author of "Foibles of the Bench" and other volumes, among which are a novel entitled "A Strange Flaw," and a series of sketches entitled "The Trials of a Stump Speaker." This is his first venture in the poetical field.

THE HENRY ALTEMUS CO., Philadelphia, have in preparation a new edition of Taine's "English Literature," in four volumes, with sixty-four photogravure and half-tone portraits of historical celebrities. The translation is that of Van Laun, and the edition will be ready early in February. They will publish at an early date George Randolph Chester's "Bobby Burnit," the author's latest effort at satirical humor.

AN edition of the Authorized Version of the Bible will be published immediately in The Cambridge English Classics. The text has been reprinted with literal accuracy from a copy of the folio of 1611, in the possession of Aldis Wright, who has edited the reprint for the Syndics of the Press. It will be comprised in five volumes, the Old Testament occupying three and the New Testament and the Apocrypha one volume each.

D. C. HEATH & Co. will publish shortly in their English Classics Series the "Essays of Elia," edited by H. E. Coblentz, of the Milwaukee South Division High School. They also announce a volume on "Inorganic Chemistry for College Classes,' by Dr. Lyman C. Newell, of the Boston University, and a revised edition of "Exercises in Latin Prose Composition," by Professor John Leverett Moore, of Vassar College.

THE popularity of "Aunt Jane of Kentucky" grows steadily and its fame is spreading to other countries. Some of the chapters have been reprinted in Australia and New Zealand. Two copies of the entire book are now in print for the blind, one in the Albany State Library and the other in the New York City Library. These are in six volumes of English braille, while the copy being prepared for the Providence (R. I.) Library in American braille will require nine volumes.

BRENTANO'S will publish February 20 "The Perfume of the Lady in Black," a new and remarkable detective story by Gaston Leroux, who showed his cleverness for that kind of work in his successful "Mystery of the Yellow Room," some of the characters of this ingenious tale again appearing in the new story. The hero is again Joseph Rouletabille, the young reporter, with the almost uncanny powers of reasoning. The story begins with a wedding, and the mystery centres around the couple on their honeymoon.

The Electrical Record for January gives an interesting account of the use of electricity in a bookbindery, by Charles Craig Phelps, who has selected the J. F. Tapley Company's plant at 531 East Thirty-seventh Street, New York City, as one of the most complete and best-equipped in this country. From the time the sheets are brought into the establishment until the completed book is ready to be delivered, every machine used in the process is driven by electricity, including the heating of the dies and glue pots.

J. B. LIPPINCOTT COMPANY have in press an important work on "Insect Relations," by John B. Smith, best known as the New Jersey State Entomologist, an authority on economic entomology, and as author of an important work on "Economic Entomology," which has already run two editions. In this new book the author traces the relations of insect life to man, to the other animals, to insects, and to plants, and considers the effect of the efforts of man to put a check upon insect pests and to alter the balance of nature.

THE educational Museum of Teachers' College, at Columbia University, has opened an exhibit of material collected in various parts of the world by Professor David Eugene Smith, author of the Smith Arithmetics, published by Ginn & Company, to show the historical development of mathematics. The growth of number systems is illustrated by several Babylonian cylinders, by magic squares on stone and in Chinese silk, and by Greek, Persian, Egyptian, Roman, Arabic, Chinese, Japanese and Hindu mathematical materials.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will publish early in February two important novels—"The Three Brothers," by Eden Phillpotts, in which the famous English novelist returns to the Dartmoor country with which his name is closely associated; and "The Straw," by Rina Ramsay, a new author of whom much is expected, who tells a lively story of the gay English hunting set, full of action and of clever touches of character. A new book by the veteran Lord Avebury, (Sir John Lubbock,) "Peace and Happiness," is also announced for publication early in the month.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will have as their first contribution to the fiction of 1909 "The Pilgrim's March," by H. H. Bashford, a new writer, who has furnished a happy English story of which the hero is a youth of artistic tendencies, who is contrasted with a character of Puritan spirit and the situation well worked out. The house will also publish a collection of some forty pieces from Punch, chiefly by the editor, Owen Seaman, to be uniform with his former delightful volumes, "A Harvest of Chaff" and "Borrowed Plumes." New editions are also ready of "A Lord of Lands," Ramsey Benson's fine study of Western farm life; and of "Nature and Health," (the third edition,) by Dr. Edward Curtis.

THE CENTURY CO. will publish next month a new book by Mrs. Jennette Lee, whose "Uncle William," the story of an old Nova Scotia fisherman and philosopher, has made so many friends. The new book is called "Simeon Tetlow's Shadow." Dr. Maurice Francis Egan's "Sexton Maginnis" stories have been gathered into a book, and will be published by The Century Company this spring. Dr. Egan is at present United States Minister to Denmark, following several years' work as Professor of English Language and Literature at the Catholic University, Washington.

ONE of the oldest and best-known college professors in the country, John Williams White, has just resigned his position at Harvard, where he has been teaching Greek since 1874. Professor White was graduated from Ohio Wesleyan University in 1868 and three years later received his A.M. degree there. After that he studied at Berlin and Harvard, where he received a doctor's degree in 1877. He has been the recipient of several higher degrees and many notable honors in the past thirty years. Probably he is best known to teachers and pupils through his "First Greek Book," published by Ginn & Company. From available statistics it is estimated that eighty per cent. of the high schools and academies where Greek is taught use this book.

GEORGE W. JACOBS & Co. have in preparation a useful little handbook entitled "The A B C of Skat," by Agnes Henry, who has striven to make the rules of this favorite German game of cards so simple that they can be comprehended by the learner, and a series of examples of possible hands will be a feature of especial value. They hope to publish this spring the third volume of ex-Mayor Charles F. Warwick's trilogy on the French Revolution. Its title will be "Robespierre and the French Revolution," and, besides being a biography of the famous man whose name it bears, it will give a full account of the closing scenes of the Terror and a summary of the chief events of the great epoch in history of which it formed a conspicuous part.

MOFFAT, YARD & Co. will bring out on January 28, in the series of Our American Holidays, edited by Robert Haven Schauffler, a volume entitled "Lincoln's Birthday," a unique anthology about Lincoln culled from a wealth of essays, poems, character studies and historical estimates on the subject, forming really a composite portrait of Lincoln as seen through the eyes of many writers of distinction. They have in press what is described as "a story of theatrical life in New York City told in the form of extracts from the diary of a pretty, piquant dancing girl," whose success is due more to the nimbleness of her wits than to the nimbleness of her feet. "The Diary of a Show Girl" will be the title of the book, which will contain eighteen drawings by Wallace Morgan, the creator of "Fluffy Ruffles." The author is Grace Luce Irwin, (Mrs. Wallace Irwin.)

FLEMING H. REVELL COMPANY will publish shortly a book on "The Exploration of Egypt and the Old Testament," by Dr. J. Garrow Duncan, who gives the story of what he learned while working under the direction of Dr. Flinders Petrie particularly in Goshen, where the Israelites were located while in Egypt. The book will be illustrated from photographs and charts. They also announce the immediate publication of a new book by Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, of London, entitled "Mountains and Valleys in the Ministry of Jesus," which is said to be a splendid example of Dr. Morgan's gift of teaching by contrasts; "Peru, its Story, People and Religion," by Miss Geraldine Guiness, who knows her subject intimately through long residence and extensive travels in the country of which she writes; also, J. J. Bell's story, "Whither Thou Goest," already described by us.

A. C. MCCLURG & Co. call attention to the following books which should find sale apropos of the Lincoln Centennial celebration: "The Illini," by Clark E. Carr, now in its seventh edition, which gives some interesting intimate glimpses of Lincoln; "Lincoln Year Book," axioms and aphorisms by the great emancipator for every day in the year, compiled by Wallace Rice; "Lincoln's Gettysburg Address," by Clark E. Carr, which presents the facts as stated by an eye witness; "Life of Lincoln," by Isaac N. Arnold, with an introduction by the Hon. E. B. Washburn, now considered as an authority, not only upon the character and career of Lincoln, but upon the history of the period to which it is devoted; "The Children's Life of Abraham Lincoln," by Louise M. Putnam, which is extensively used in public schools; also, "My Day and Generation," by Clark E. Carr, three chapters of which are devoted to personal recollections of Lincoln which have special interest at this time.

GINN & Co. have just brought out in The Open Library a volume by Marion Florence Lansing, entitled "Tales of Old England in Prose and Verse," in which is presented a selection of stories from a field of literature which has always been a favorite one with young readers. "Tom Thumb," "Child Rowland, "Dick Whittington and His Cat," "Jack and the Beanstalk" and the other Jack, of giant fame, are to be found among the fourteen tales which have been chosen by Miss Lansing. The stories, which are all distinctively English, have for many years delighted the children of this country as much as they did our ancestors, and it is expected that their reappearance in new garb will serve as an agreeable introduction to American school children who have not yet made their acquaintance. They have nearly ready a book of travels, descriptions, tales and historical sketches, entitled "Merrie England," by Grace Greenwood, adapted for supplementary reading for school children.

THE J. S. OGILVIE PUBLISHING COMPANY, of New York, announce for early publication "When the Wildwood Was in Flower," a new book by G. Smith Stanton, whose first book, "Where the Sportsman Loves to Linger," published in 1905, was very well received. Mr. Stanton is the son of Henry B. Stanton, for many years political editor of the New York Sun in Charles A. Dana's time, and Elizabeth Cady Stanton. In "When the Wildwood Was in Flower" the author tells of the fifteen years he spent on the plains as a stockman, before and after the days of railroads. He was a shipper of live stock to Chicago before, during and after the formation of the Beef Trust, and relates how, with other stockmen, he was driven out of business by that gigantic combination. "Reminiscences of the Author's Vacation Days," the second half of the book, contains seven short narratives of his vacation days in the open. The book will contain one hundred and twenty-five pages, illustrated with thirty-six half-tone pictures from photographs, and is to be published in cloth at one dollar, net.

THE JOHN C. WINSTON COMPANY will publish at once "Neglected Neighbors," a remarkable book by Charles F. Weller, executive secretary of the President's Homes Commission. This book, which has an introduction by President Roosevelt, is a careful study of housing conditions in the national capital. It is intended to be the first of a series of surveys, from a sociological standpoint, of the chief congested centres in the principal cities of the country. They have in preparation a new juvenile by Edward S. Ellis, dealing with the automobile craze, which will be entitled "Upside Down." Mr. Ellis has also placed in the hands of the Winston Company the manuscript of two volumes of what is to be known as the Overland Series. The stories will deal with the pony express riders of the West in the early days of the Republic. They are issuing a number of reprints of standard works of fiction at popular prices, the list now numbering a score or more of books that are still favorites with the reading public. Among the authors represented are Charles Heber Clark, (Max Adeler,) Louise Betts Edwards, John Trotwood Moore, Henry Peterson, Elizabeth Stoddard and George Gibbs.

HOUGHTON MIFFLIN COMPANY will bring out on February 27 a centenary edition of Professor Woodberry's biography of Edgar Allan Poe. This will be practically a new work, which will hold the field in the future as its predecessor has in the past, as a definitive life of this most interesting of American poets by one of the foremost of living poets and critics. Besides the large amount of new letters and other material which have been added to the text, there will be numerous appendices, presenting documents of the first importance in the consideration of Poe's life, and a complete bibliography of his writings. The two volumes will be richly illustrated with rare portraits of some of the men, now little known, with whom Poe was in his lifetime intimately associated. Among the notable books which Houghton Mifflin Co. are announcing for publication this year are two volumes of important historical research on "The German Element in the United States," by Professor Albert Bernhardt Faust, of Cornell University. The author has made this subject the chief work of the last ten years, and the first draft of the manuscript won the prize of $3000 offered by Conrad Seipp, of Chicago, for the best essay on the subject. The book will be lavishly illustrated and will probably appear in the early autumn.

CHARLES M. ROE, who has been long and favorably known to the trade through his connection with the American Baptist Publication Society, is now located in Battle Creek, Mich., in charge of the Modern Medicine Pub. Co., Ltd., Good Health Publishing Co., Battle Creek University of Health and Modern Medicine Co., who publish the books of Dr. J. H. Kellogg, of the Battle Creek Sanitarium. Chief among these is Dr. Kellogg's "Home Book of Modern Medicine," a new edition of which, in two volumes, is just ready. Their other books are "The Art of Massage," "The Stomach and its Disorders," "Science in the Kitchen," "Healthful Cookery," "The Ladies Guide," "Man the Masterpiece," "Plain Facts for Old and Young," "The Miracle of Life," "Studies in Character Building" and "Studies in Home and Child Life." The prices of these books are net, postage extra, and the publishers give assurance that the prices will be adhered to strictly by every one. The natural methods of treating disease and of conserving health originated and employed by the Battle Creek Sanitarium are now recognized by thinking people the world over as among the most sane, safe and effective. Thousands of people are finding new life for themselves in the use of the Battle Creek ideas. These people are to be found in nearly every city, town and hamlet in this country. They represent the most prosperous and intelligent classes. This clientele of the sanitarium wish to buy for themselves and for circulation among their friends the publications which present the Battle Creek ideas.

TERMS OF ADVERTISING.

Under the heading "Books Wanted" book-trade subscribers, under their own names, are given the privilege of a free advertisement for books out of print of five nonpareil lines, exclusive of address, in any issue except special numbers to an extent not exceeding 100 lines a year. If more than five lines are sent the excess is at 10 cents a line, and amount should be inclosed. Bids for current books and such as may be easily had from the publishers, and repeated matter, as well as all advertisements from non-subscribers, or those advertising anonymously, must be paid for at the rate of 10 cents a line. All objectionable books will be excluded so far as they come under our notice.

Under the heading "Books for Sale," the charge to subscribers and non-subscribers is 10 cents a nonpareil line for each insertion. No reduction for repeated matter.

All other small undisplayed advertisements will be charged at the uniform rate of 10 cents a nonpareil line. Eight words may be reckoned to the line.

Parties with whom we have no account must pay in advance, otherwise no notice will be taken of their Communications.

BOOKS WANTED.

☞ In answering, please state edition, condition, and price, including postage or express charges.

Houses that are willing to deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis will find it to their advantage to put after their firm-name the word [Cash.]

☞ Write your wants plainly, and on one side of the sheet only. Illegibly-written "wants" will be considered as not having been received. The "Publishers' Weekly" does not hold itself responsible for errors.

It should be understood that the appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the "Publishers' Weekly," does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it is endeavored to safeguard these columns by withdrawing the privilege of their use from advertisers who are not "good pay" booksellers should take the usual precautions, as to advertisers not known to them, that they would take in making sales to any unknown parties.

GROSSET & DUNLAP

BEG to announce to the trade that they have taken over the Popular Copyright business of the A. Wessels Company, and have purchased from them all the stock—both bound and in sheets—of their Popular Copyright Fiction. The publication of some of the titles will be discontinued when the present stocks are disposed of, but all the more important ones will be incorporated in the Grosset & Dunlap line of Popular Copyrights, and new complete lists will be mailed to the trade as soon as they can be prepared. In the meantime all orders for Popular Copyrights formerly published by the A. Wessels Company should be sent to us.

Annual Library Index

Announcement of the 1908 Volume

IT has been decided to continue the ANNUAL LIBRARY INDEX, to include in the 1908 volume most of the important periodicals covered by the five-yearly Poole's Index, adding about forty to the list indexed for 1907, and to publish this as early in 1909 as the editorial work and printing can be completed. This will include a large number of periodicals not indexed in any other publication, and should be of value not only in libraries which take most of the periodicals indexed, but also to smaller libraries which take only a few of the periodicals but are enabled by this Index to point readers to other sources of information on specified subjects.

The edition will be limited, and it is desirable to know in advance the probable number of subscribers. In view of the cost of such bibliographical enterprises and the large increase in the ground covered this year, the price will be $5.00 for the complete bound volume. It should be noted that this is a much lower price actually as well as relatively than that for other Indexes.

The volume will include, in addition to the practical index, the usual features of the index to general literature (i. e., of composite books issued in 1908), the list of bibliographies; the necrology of authors; the index to current events, which has been one of the most practical and valuable features of the Annual Library Index for some years past, providing as it does, an index to any daily newspaper; and a new up-to-date Directory of Public Libraries.

☛ The Directory of Libraries is a feature of special value to the Book Trade.

ISSUED FROM

THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY OFFICE

The Publishers' Weekly

Recognized as the representative of the publishing and bookselling interests in the United States. Contains full weekly record of American publications, with monthly indexes, cumulated quarterly, news of interest concerning the book trade, lists of "Books Wanted," (an advertising feature which each subscriber can use without charge to the extent of 100 lines per year,) etc., etc. Subscription, $4.00 a year; to foreign countries, $5.00 a year.

The Annual American Catalog, 1908

In two parts: A short-title index to all the book publications of the year and a full-title index, with brief annotation of the leading books of 1908. (Ready March, 1909.) 8vo, cloth, $3.00.

The American Catalog, 1905-1907

Vol. I containing in one alphabet an index to all books published during 1905 06-07; under author, title, subject and series entries. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50.

Vol. II containing the full-title Weekly Record material of The Publishers' Weekly for the same years, in a separate alphabet for each year. 8vo, half morocco, $6.00.

The American Catalog, 1900-1905

Vol. I contains a five-year cumulation, Jan. 1, 1900-Jan. 1, 1905, giving in one alphabet, by author, title and subject, information of the books issued during the years covered by this period. It also contains a directory of over 3800 publishers, with street addresses. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50.

Vol. II or Supplementary volume gives the full-title entries with annotations printed in the Weekly Record of The Publishers' Weekly, cumulated into an alphabet for each year, i.e., into five alphabets 1900, 01, 02, 03, 04. This is planned to answer the demand of such libraries, bookdealers, and others as want the full material of The Publishers' Weekly bibliographical system in available shape. 8vo, half morocco, $7.50. The set of two, $15.

Of the previous series of THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE, quarto size, the earlier volumes are out of print. We have remaining a few copies of the volumes 1890-95 and 1895-1900, bound in half morocco, $15.00 each.

"THE TRAVELLERS' NUMBER"
THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY

THE new special number of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY, known as "The Travellers' Number," inaugurated last year, will be issued this year under date of February 27th. Its principal object is the exploitation of Competitive Lines in the mutual interest of publisher and buyer. This field has not heretofore been regularly covered in trade journalism, and our purpose is to make this issue one of commanding importance to the trade. Several reference features make it of unusual value for reference throughout the year. It will reach every possible buyer of competitive lines throughout the country.

Sufficient advertising support having already been pledged, there will be no increase in schedule rates. Publishers of such lines as Competitive Reprints, Copyright Rebinds, Popular Classics, Standard Sets and Series, Rag and Toy Books, Christmas Cards and Calendars, Bibles and Prayer Books, Dictionaries, Technical Hand-Books, etc., will find in "The Travellers' Number" an attractive opportunity for profitable advertising at the opening of the season of early buying.
